The Thaw trial is in statu quo and promises to remain so until a change of weather anyway.

The Colorado legislature has passed a local option law. That would be a dry subject to get through a New Mexico legislature.

The New York stock market seems to be in a flurry of excitement but it does not apparently have any effect on march wind in Tucumcari.

The statement of the First National Bank, this week in the report to the comptroller of currency shows deposits of more than a quarter of a million. The deposits are now little short of $300,000.00. Good showing for Tucumcari business interests.

There is going to be a city election next month. April is city election. Think out who you want to serve you in the respective places that are to be filled and don't get sore after the matter has been settled by the people as we must pull together for the general good of Tucumcari.

Senator Beveridge says single statehood for New Mexico is a dream. No matter it will never trouble the sleep of many New Mexicans. We can get along just about as well without statehood as the republicans in congress can without our support when a few votes may change the situation in presidential year.

This paper is in receipt of a communication this week on the subject of a herd law for Quay county, which we can not publish for the reason that no name is signed. We do not require the name for publication, however, correspondents may sign any nom-de-plume they choose, but must always sign correct name so that this office will know positively who the writer is. There are some good thoughts in the communication referred to, but we positively will not publish anything from a correspondent unless we know who writes it.

THE OUTLOOK.
 The proportion of the last year's crops remaining in the farmers' hands on March 1st is without precedent. It is estimated in the government reports that 206,644,000 bushels of wheat, or what in ordinary years is about one-fifth of the crop, is still on hand. The unmarketed reserve of corn is 1,298,000,000, or 44 per cent of the crop of that cereal. This unusual surplus on hand after three-fourths of the crop year has passed would seem to indicate that American production of late years has been beyond the needs of home consumption, plus a remunerative demand to supply foreign deficiencies, as well as in excess of the capacity of the transportation facilities of the country. The situation is literally one of an embarrassment of riches. If the crops of 1907 should be poor ones, there will be no danger of suffering by reason of dear bread, for there is plenty of grain in store. On the other hand, if the new crops should be up to the recent average, how could they be moved to market.—Albuquerque Citizen.

The outlook for another year of plenty in our great country is to say the least very flattering, so notwithstanding that 1908 is presidential year with another good agricultural yield the politicians will have strenuous times making a campaign against republican prosperity.
